A familiar burden in many a home,
The burden of a "bad back."

A lame, a weak or an aching back
Often tells you of kidney ills.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Here is a good testimony to prove it.
Mrs. Elmer Stiles, Western Ave., South Paris, Me., says: "For several years a member of my family suffered from sharp pains through the small of his back. He had dizzy spells, felt tired and was all run down. On a friend's advice, we got Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave prompt relief, in fact, made a great improvement in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have our highest endorsement."

A LAY SERMON.

There are some folks,
They are so funny,
Their only thought
In life is money.

Then there are those
Who think it best
To use their lifetime
For a rest.

Then there are those
Who do not on clothes,
And that's where all
Their money goes.

Then there are those
Who think eat it;
They stuff until
Their shirt fronts split.

Then there are those Whose great delight
Is gossip and
A back fence fight.

Then there are those—
They aren't few—
Their aim in life
Is to skin you.

Then there are those
Who love bear so
They hope there's plenty
Down below.

You do not wish
To hear me preach?
You say you are
A perfect peach.

You're mad, Ha, ha!
Looks like you're hit.
Well, yell, I guess.
The sermon hit.

C. M. BARNITZ.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS
Q. What effect has too much ventilation on the eggs in the incubator? A. Air cell gets too large, egg dries out, chick sticks in shell because natural moisture has evaporated.

Q. Should chicks have cut bone or beef scrap from the start? A. Not for two weeks and then in small quantities.

Q. In this climate we do not have cold and snow, but our winter is called the rainy season. Would Plymouth Rocks, White Wyandottes or Rhode Island Reds thrive in such a climate?

A. Yes, but they must be protected from rain and storm.

Q. Can one tell anything about the age and freshness of an egg by the size of the air cell? A. Yes, the air cell of a fresh egg is very small and enlarges with age.

Q. Please give the poultry statistics of the United States—the last census.
A. 295,976,176 fowls, aggregate value $163,394,142; value of egg crop per year over $620,000,000.

Q. I am catering to the fancy white egg trade and would like to know what kind of packing is best. A. Dark fillers and dark paper are best, as they make the eggs look whiter by contrast.

Q. How may I keep down size in bantams? A. The breeders should be small, especially the hens which have much to do with size of offspring. Do not hatch the chicks before June or July.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.
We advise you to cut open dead fowls and study their organs well. You will learn much about poultry diseases, their cause, symptoms, prevention and cure, and you will also notice the vast difference between the real thing and the anatomy of a hen as drawn by certain hot air poultry artists.

The Wisconsin experiment station has recently added a fattening shed and fifteen colony houses to its poultry outfit. Poultry culture advances in great strides, but the old fossils,
who "algs is jist aigs and chuckens is jist chuckens," still flounder in the same old muddy rut back in Sleepy Hollow.

Poultry associations generally have popular support and become a regular feature and success, but when they get into the hands of a few fellows who manage them for their own profit
they soon fall through.

There isn't any sentiment wasted on chicken thieves in Seattle. When Ed Johnson came up before Judge Gay for sentence he was sent to the Walla Walla penitentiary for one to five years. They call hen lifting burglary out there.

Under the regulations of the American Kennel club the fellow who advertises a win that was never awarded to him is quickly shown up and expelled from the organization. There are fanciers advertising wins at Madison Square, Boston and Chicago who never exhibited a fowl at these shows, some advertising wins at shows when they never exhibited anywhere. They ought to be some way to show up and punish these swindlers, for that's really all they are.

Since August, 1911, 804 new members have joined the American Poultry association. That's going some, but just wait until the association does the square thing by the utility side of poultry culture and there will be a greater increase to crow over.

In setting turkey eggs under chicken hens it is wise to place an upturned turf in the bottom of the nest. Mother turkey sits right on the ground, and we have seen her hatch twenty poulters
out of twenty eggs after a rainy season of a month, and the ground was soaked with moisture.

A hen will sometimes eat her chicks
when they come out, and this is mostly the case when she is not fed well during hatching. The maternal instinct is certainly strong in fowls when they keep on hatching when alive with lice
or in a starving condition.

Milk With Dry Hands.
Never milk the cow with wet hands.
No more filthy habit is indulged in than that of milking on the hand in order to strip the teat. Milking should always be done with a full, dry hand.

KEZAR FALLS.
George Merrill of Portland was the recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart.

"Gentleman's night" with the Thursday Club was a very pleasant social.
It was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs.
Roy Lord.

Jerry Bullock passed away Feb. 6th after a long illness with diabetes. He leaves a wife and daughter, who have ministered to him for many months.

The Ladies' Circle met with Mrs.
William Riddon. The hostess served cake, coffee and candy, the social hour following being full of good cheer. At their weekly gatherings this busy band of workers take a breathing spell from their labor and enjoy an interchange of ideas which draws them closer together in the ties of unity.

Everett Lord died Feb. 5th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robbins, who cared for him tenderly during a long sickness. Funeral services were held on the afternoon of Feb. 8th conducted by Rev. Cymbrid Hughes. Among the flowers was a beautiful bouquet of pinks from the L. M. R. C.
Mr. Lord leaves two sisters and two brothers to mourn their loss.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by systematic remedial measures. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result and the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be restored forever.
Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo,

WHEN YOU SHIP HOGS.
You Will Find It Pays to Take Good Care of Animals' Comfort.

If comfort of hogs while in transit to market be carefully provided the owner will be repaid. Initial preparation for the transportation of the hog should be planned with the object of maintaining as nearly as possible the favorable conditions under which he has been brought to a marketable stage of perfection. From the farm to the loading point too much care cannot be exercised. Use every available means to effect this transfer with the least possible worry and excitement to the animal. In loading pens make certain that food is available if his appetite be working. See that an abundance of pure water is accessible and that drinking troughs are clean. Let him have food and drink right up to the time of loading.

Before loading make a close inspection
of cars. Clean out all old bedding, manure, and so forth. In summer spread a layer of good clean sand or small gravel three or four inches deep over the floor of the car. "Exhaust" orders, if available, mix well with the sand. If the hogs are to be confined in the car for a period exceeding that which has usually elapsed between feeding periods put in ear corn, the amount to be determined by the probable time the animals will be en route.
If the weather is warm it is wise to cool the hogs by sprinkling with cool water, but care should be exercised in putting cold water over the backs of the swine if they are very warm.

A little cold water on the back of a very hot hog often causes his death. In winter, especially in very cold weather,
put in a liberal bedding of clean straw or hay and on top of it ear corn in amount depending on the conditions.

In no instance, either in winter or summer, should hogs be loaded in cars in which there is an accumulation of old bedding or manure. The heat generated by the swine causes fermentation of the old manure. This in turn heats or scalds the hog, causing shrinkage, besides so affecting his appetite that when unloaded he will neither eat nor drink as he should. Moreover, his appearance is affected to the detriment of his selling value.

Experience demonstrates that it is a mistake to keep hogs off water for an unusual period before starting them for market. As a rule, better fills are obtained and less shrinkage experienced if no unusual or extreme measures be taken. Weight is held far better if feed and water in usual rationary periods as circumstances will allow.

Cause for Alarm

Loss of appetite or distress after eating—a symptom that should not be disregarded.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, healthiest persons are moderate eaters. Nothing will cause more trouble than a disordered stomach, and many people contract serious maladies through disregard or abuse of the stomach.

We urge all who suffer from indigestion, or dyspepsia, to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, with the understanding that we will refund the money paid us without question or formality, if after use you are not perfectly satisfied with results.

We recommend Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets to customers every day, and have yet to hear of one who has not been benefited. We believe them to be without equal. They give prompt relief, aiding to neutralize acidity, stimulate flow of gastric juice, strengthen the digestive organs, and thus promote perfect nutrition and correct unhealthy symptoms. Facing Death For Love

By ARTHUR W. BREWSTER

There is an island in the Pacific ocean which produces tropical fruit in abundance, and ships stop there to take it away and leave its equivalent in money or in such goods as the natives require. But the islanders will not consent to any mingling with the whites and are especially jealous of their women. Death is the penalty to any woman who receives a white man for a lover or a husband.

One day an American ship named the Mary Boyle stopped at the island with a cargo of miscellaneous goods which she unloaded and took on in its place such fruits as the place produced. The crew of the Mary Boyle were permitted to remain ashore during the day, but at evening they were required to go aboard the ship.

The captain of the Mary Boyle had warned his sailors to have nothing to do with the women on the island, telling them that they would not only endanger their lives, but bring certain death on any woman to whom they made love. The warning was not necessary with regard to the women, as a whole, who were many of them hideous. Even the girls were not gifted with what a white man would consider beauty. There was, however, one exception. While the shore force was unloading on the beach several girls came down to bathe. They went into the water and sported like dolphins. One of them who swam about, her long black hair trailing behind her, was as graceful as a swan. The sun glistened on some brass bracelets she wore on her arm and sparkled on a stone that was fixed just above her forehead to a ribbon bound around her head.

In contrast with this dusky maiden was one of the sailors whose eye she caught, Jack Cogan by name, with light hair and blue eyes. He followed her with his gaze so fixedly wherever she swam that the mate in charge of the party noticed his attraction, and to nip it in the bud gruffly ordered him to attend to his work.

When the girls were tired of swimming they went ashore, passing near the sailors at work, and the dark beauty, glancing at Jack, saw him gazing at her rapturously. Love is like gunpowder that only a spark is required to explode. The girl saw not only what to her was exquisite manly beauty in the fair young sailor, but the love light in his eyes. She passed on with her companions, but the damage had been done. One exchange of glances brought about that which was ready to brave death.

A week later, when the Mary Boyle was about ready to get up her anchor and sail away, the captain, in order to make sure that all the crew were aboard, ordered the boatswain to call the roll. When he came to the name of Cogan there was no reply. The captain's brow lowered. He shrunk from leaving any of his men behind and feared that Jack had in some way become involved, so that it would be impossible to extricate him. Night was coming on when no white man was permitted to be on the island. If Jack was found there he would be killed. Yet the captain dare not violate the custom of the islanders by sending a crew ashore to bring him aboard. The only course to pursue was to wait till morning.

Dawn was breaking when the watch reported that a canoe with a white man and a native woman in it was leaving the shore. The captain ran up on deck, and seeing a glass brought to bear on the couple in the boat. The wind was high and blowing on shore, giving rise to a line of breakers, but the occupants of the canoe, by dexterous paddling, the woman in the bow evidently taking the lead, had managed to ride the foamy crests and get beyond them into unbroken water. At the moment the captain took the glass a number of natives ran from the wood above the beach and began hurling spears and stones at the couple in the boat.

It was clear to those on board the Mary Boyle that Love was playing one of his reckless pranks. These two young fools were braving almost certain death that they might possess each other.

The men ashore, seeing that they were powerless to reach the fugitives with their weapons, rushed up the beach to an inlet where was moored a canoe large enough to hold half a dozen of them, and, getting aboard, started in pursuit. Six paddles were far more effective than two, especially when one of the latter was handled by a girl. But she was both strong and skillful. Indeed, it was on her, rather than her lover, who was inexperienced in canoeing, that the race depended.

All the world loves a lover, and the Parents, Read this Letter!

I have a letter from a prominent Maine clergyman in regard to a sickness of one of his children from which I quote as follows: "Our two-year-old baby was very sick at two different times and we came near losing her. We had the best doctors, but they did not know what the trouble was. In the first sickness she had high fever for several days, and the doctor said it acted like scarlet fever, but as there were no other cases he did not think it could be. Afterwards she broke out in a rash all over her body. The last sickness was similar and the doctor was puzzled. She was very nervous and we feared we would lose her. Your Dr. True's Elixir was recommended, and after two days' use she passed several worms from two to three inches in length, and is now well and strong and sleeps at nights without fretting, tossing and starting in a fright as she did formerly."

I will be glad to furnish this clergyman's name and address to anyone who cares to write to me.

N. B.—True's Elixir is the best known remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles. Purely vegetable, pleasant to take and entirely harmless. Expels stomach worms and pin worms. All dealers, 35c; 50c; $1.00. Yours for better health.

crew of the Mary Boyle, without waiting for the captain's order, lowered a boat and pulled to the rescue. The fugitives saw them and took heart. It was a question whether the sailors or the islanders would reach them first. If the islanders, the fate of the girl was sealed, for they would kill her immediately.

The pursuing boat was near the fleeing couple. The girl's father was about to hurl a spear at her when a six pound shot from the Mary Boyle struck the canoe he was in and in the panic that ensued rolled it over. That ended the struggle. The fugitives were taken aboard, the anchor raised, and the ship sailed away.

As to the future life of the young couple there is no record.

The Raw Recruit.

F. M. King enlisted in the Spanish-American war and was sent to Jefferson Barracks. He was strolling through the company streets smoking a cigar when an officer approached. King saluted.

"Look here," said the officer, "don't you know better than to salute an officer when you have a cigar in your mouth? How long have you been here?"

"Three days," replied King.

"You are excused this time," said the officer, "but don't let me catch you doing that again."

In a short time King met the same officer and walked by without saluting.

"Why didn't you salute?" demanded the officer, stopping him.

"Well, you just told me not to salute when I had a cigar in my mouth," replied the raw recruit.

But he spent three days in the kitchen peeling potatoes for this offense.—Aitchison Champion.

A Losing Dream.

"I made a nice idiot of myself the other morning," said the commuter, who is paying trolley in a savings bank. "My wife was afraid I'd miss my train, and she got me by the shoulder and shook me, telling me that it was time to get up. I got about half awake, and somehow I thought I was at my win, down in the bank, with a long line of women awaiting their turn. The one at the window was handing me a check, and from force of habit I said: 'How much money do you want?'"

"You know, most women who present checks want to draw some and deposit the rest. Well, what do you think the wife did? Quick as a flash came her answer to my dopy question: 'Five dollars will do.'"

"She got it, but I hope I won't dream any more."—New York Post.

BLAMED A GOOD WORKER.

"I blamed my heart for severe distress in my left side for two years," writes W. Evans, Danville, Va., "but I know now it was indigestion, as Dr. King's New Life Pills completely cured me." Best for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, constipation, headache or debility. 25c at The Noyes Drug Store.—Adv. 6-9

COLD WATER FUR MINE.

Red wine may look purty, its sparkle allure. An' it livens a feller a moment, that's sure. The eye it gets brighter, the thoughts come more quick. But it ain't very long till the tongue becomes thick. An' the head gets all dizzy, the feet go all wrong. Then, oh, what a sight is the man that was strong! Oh, no, sir, I ain't an expert on wine. I was raised on cold water. It's cold water fur mine!

Yes, beer with that white froth may look very fine. But lager ain't just any better than wine. When I see a mad dog that goes rushing by. An' see that white froth from his snapping jaws fly. I think of the beer glass with white froth so high; Then I think of the drunkard that goes reeling by. Oh, no, don't you think that I've got beer down fine! I was raised on cold water; it's cold water fur mine!

Old rye sparkles bright as its friends clink their glasses. An' drink to good luck an' your health, but, alas, Its sparkle is not but the eye of the snake. As it draws back its head fur a hard blow to take! Yes, many laugh merry before the bright bar. But soon they are crushed 'neath the juggernaut car. Oh, no, I'm not passing round pledges to sign. But follow my motto—it surely is fine—Cold water forever! Cold water fur mine! C. M. BARNITZ.

FEED GOVERNS EGG QUALITY.

Many seem ignorant of the fact that what a hen eats decides the flavor of her eggs. Let the doubter pen up ten hens and feed them one-half ounce of onion in mash for two weeks and their eggs will taste of onion.

Double the onion feed for another week and the eggs will be unfit to eat. Feeding not only affects flavor but the healthfulness of eggs for food and their keeping qualities as well. Sixty-five and one-half per cent of an egg is water.

The hen that drinks from the cow tracks in the barnyard surely can't manufacture an egg of sweet flavor, odor, good for food and a good keeper.

Where hens eat garbage, scratch rot from manure piles, eat decayed vegetables, meat and musty grain their eggs are insatiable, with small yolk and flabby structure. They smell not like a forgotten and quick turn to a rot and spot.

Some argue that a hen is naturally dirtier than a hog and naturally a lover of filth. This is untrue. The hen originated in the woods and was as wild and clean in its habits and habits as a pheasant, and it is John Bughouse that has taught her hog habits and kept her on the hopen plan.

St. Paul says, "Brethren, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, think on these things."

Yes, let us think everything lovely, be everything lovely and by pure methods produce what is lovely.

THE EGG LAYING CONTEST.

At the close of the thirty-fourth week of the international egg laying contest, which is being held at the Storrs Agricultural college in Connecticut and in which some 500 pullets and hens are taking part, the pen of five White Leghorns owned by Mr. Yost, an American, had laid 722 eggs as against 702 eggs laid by the pen of English hens, which were in the lead up to a few weeks ago. The third place is held by an American pen of White Wyandottes with a score of 678 eggs, while the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth places are held by as many pens of White Leghorns. The best laying pullet of the entire lot is a Buff Orpington belonging to Mr. Wilson, an American, which has laid 197 eggs to her credit in eight months. The second best individual hen is a White Orpington that has laid 178 eggs on her score card, and the third is a White Leghorn that has laid 164 eggs.

APPLE CULTIVATION.

With conditions prevailing in the northern states—and this holds especially of the country north of latitude 42 degrees—which result in a growing season that barely permits the proper maturing of the new growth of apple trees, it is well to cease cultivation shortly after the middle of July and sow a cover crop. This may be cowpeas in the more southerly portion and vetch, buckwheat or oats in the northerly portion. By absorbing surplus moisture in the soil a condition results that tends to check further growth and hasten the maturity of new wood, thus tending to lessen the likelihood of winter killing. The cover crop thus produced should be left on the ground as a catch for the snow and may be plowed under next spring.

SUMMER PRUNING.

If any readers of this department have family or commercial orchards that have been doing a big business along the line of leaf and shoot production, but not much in way of fruit, now is the proper time to do summer pruning—a process that will tend to check wood growth and form fruit buds for next season. In a general way the type of pruning followed should be akin to that used earlier in the season. It should include the removal of cross limbs or others out of place, the cutting back of limbs that are too long and spindly and, if necessary, the thinning out of quite a good deal of the wood in the head of a tree, a great majority of which have the brush pile tendency all too pronounced.

THE STRAWBERRY BED.

In territory east of the Rocky mountains in which the rainfall is thirty inches per annum more the spring is the best time in which to set out a strawberry bed, as the usually frequent rains make it possible for the plants to get well established before dry weather sets in. The plants may be set in the fall, but seldom do as well. However, if tried, one should aim to set vigorous plants, taking up as much earth with the roots as possible and having as little time as possible elapse between taking up and setting. If the conditions obtaining during September and October are favorable, the bed will get a good start and will bear considerable fruit next season.

A SOIL RENOVATOR.

The soy bean, the value of which as a producer of forage and as a soil renovator is being more fully recognized as time passes, is a native of Japan where it is extensively grown and furnishes a nutritious ration which serves to balance the extensive rice diet. It grows with the branching, treelike stalk to a height of two or three feet and bears a small pod containing a yellow, waxy bean which will yield in the neighborhood of twenty-five bushels per acre under favorable conditions. The plant through the agency of bacteria which frequent its root system deposits nitrogen taken from the air in the surrounding soil as do other legumes.

A FLY REPELLER.

The Kansas experiment station has tested and recommends the following preparation for use as a spray for dairy cows to repel flies: Dissolve one and a half pounds of rosin in a solution of hot water in which two cakes of laundry soap have been dissolved. Remove from fire, add one-half pint of kerosene and fish oil, then stir well and add enough water to make three-gallons. The spray may be applied with any hand outfit that will do satisfactory work, but there are spray outfits that are especially designed for the work. The soap and oils are especially offensive to the flies, and the rosin serves to fix and hold them.

THE VALUABLE SILO.

A big cattle feeder near Maple Hill, Kan., is this year building four cement silos 20 by 35 feet and having a capacity of 500 tons of silage each. He owns a big ranch in the southwest part of the state and brings range cattle to his farm for fattening. He feeds and markets as high as 3,000 steers in a season and has fed as high as 100,000 bushels of corn in a single feeding season. The unusually high prices of grain and hay prevailing for the past two years are responsible for these silos, the owner believing that they will reduce his feed bills considerably.

There are 29,586,000 miles of telephone wire in the world, and nearly two-thirds of this is found in the United States, and a good share of this total amount has been used for the purpose of farm folks to visit with each other and get in direct touch with the outside world.

DIXIE.

Once more an attempt is being made to change the words of the song "Dixie."

It is said the words are awkward. Possibly. And yet—

The words, such as they are, are married to the tune—inextricably wedded. What tradition and a reverent spirit hath joined together no man should put asunder.

It is proposed, for instance, to change the old words about "cinnamon seed and sandy bottom" to the following:

Oh, Dixie land is the land of glory. The land of cherished song and story.

Which words may be good enough in their place, but they never will be permanently fitted to Dixie. The native flavor of the southland is in the homey "cinnamon seed and sandy bottom."

What a lot of "go" there is in the tune!

It is almost as popular in the north as in the south. You cannot wake up a listless American audience quicker than to start the band on those staccato notes. There is none other that will so bring men and women to their feet with beating pulses and flushed faces.

Let Dixie alone. Lips that long are dust once breathed those "awkward" words. Embalmed in sacred recollection, to change them almost would amount to an insult to the dead.

This itch to change or substitute new words for our national songs breaks out periodically. Not long ago it was "The Star Spangled Banner" that was to be reformed in this particular.

That failed because it deserved to fail. The words of that verse are fighting words, and they flamed up hot and patriotic from the soul of Francis Scott Key.

Let the old songs be. Who would ask to change the choppy phrase of the "Marseillaise" dashed off in the fervor of revolution? The words forever belong to the wild music. And the slow cadences of "The Watch on the Rhine" are no dearer to every lover of the fatherland than are the stanzas that fit it.

Let Dixie alone. Because you cannot change the body of it without changing its immortal soul.

A Weaver's Apprentice.

A certain Dean Tucker was one day strolling through a village either in Gloucestershire or Somersetshire when he carelessly entered the shop of a poor weaver. Lying there he saw an old Greek Testament, dirty and well thumbed.

"How comes this here? Who reads this book?" asked the dean.

"Sir," said the weaver, "my son is always poring over books of that kind."

"Let me see him," said the dean.

The lad was called and on examination was found to have a fair knowledge of Greek and Latin. By appointment he waited upon the dean next day and was introduced to several wealthy persons of the neighborhood. They were so struck with the lad's talent and industry that a sum of money was subscribed to secure his further education. The father wisely allowed Dean Tucker to guide the boy's future, and he was sent to school at Gloucester, whence he went to Oxford. There the weaver's apprentice became the renowned Professor White, canon of Christ church and professor of Hebrew and Arabic.

Why Do Children Torture Animals?

There are in nature two counteracting tendencies, evolutionary and involutionary, progressive and retrogressive. In man the retrogressive tendency is called "atavism" and is exhibited in a tendency to return to an early type of the human being. It may be a retrogression in mental or physical characteristics, and among the former is the destructive tendency. This destructive tendency can be traced to the fundamental instinct of self preservation which seeks the destruction of everything which can serve for food or which might deprive the animal of food or endanger its life. When an animal is impelled by hunger it immediately slays its victim, but when this incentive to immediate destruction is absent it seems to find a satisfaction in putting its victim to death slowly and sees it in an animal struggle is seen in all races before they have been affected by the restraining influence of civilization and in children before they can understand the import of the Golden Rule—New York American.

THE HARDWARE STORE

The time is at hand for the sowing of the turnip seed for the fall crop. In the average small garden there is usually some space that has produced a crop that might just as well be growing turnips during the fall as weeds or nothing at all. The ground should be put in good condition and the seed sown rather sparingly, as it will produce many more plants than one realizes at the time of sowing.

WOMEN'S WEAR.

Wyoming is one mountain state that has suffered a good deal in a business way for months past as a result of heavy cattle losses due to severe snowstorms last winter. One rancher at Douglas, Wyo., reports as high as 60 per cent of the cattle and sheep of that section lost as a result of the storms. In their efforts to save their flocks many inexperienced ranchmen and several old timers lost their lives.

THE LUXURANCE OF THE BED OF FLOWERING PLANTS.

The luxurance of the bed of flowering plants is likely to depend quite largely upon the amount of water it receives. This is true with respect to the smaller flowering plants and especially of the larger, such as the aster, salvia and dahlia. Water is needed at frequent intervals during the growth of the plant and particularly at blossom time, when the vitality of the whole plant is taxed to the utmost.

FRYEBURG.
